

Rishi Sunak

Hi, welcome to the Darlington Economic Campus and our brand new site for upcoming jobs across the departments located together in the campus. We've developed this site for one very good reason. We want you to join us. I'm really excited about the Darlington Economic Campus. It is a place where you can grow your career working on issues at the heart of government, making a difference to real people and their lives. The work at the economic campus affects everyone across the UK and around the world. It's a vital importance to every part of our society. So we want your talent, your ideas, and your voice. This is your chance to make a difference. We want people with a variety of experience, skills and backgrounds to work on the most important decisions and to ensure we represent the people we serve. There's a wide variety of civil service roles here and I'm confident that you'll find something that excites you. Best of luck with your application. I hope to see you working at the Darlington Economic Campus soon.